The Inca

Class Objective

Students will know the political, religious, cultural, and economic characteristics of the Inca civilization.

While the Aztec were developing their great civilization, the Inca were developing an equally powerful state in South America.

The capital of the Incan civilization was located in southern Peru.

The Inca Beginnings

- The name Inca originally came from a ruling family of a group or people living in a high plateau of the Andes.
- After wandering nomadically for years, the Inca finally settled on fertile lands in the Valley of Cuzco.
- By the 1200s, the Inca had established their own kingdom in the valley.

Agriculture

- Like the Maya, the Inca used terrace farming because of the mountainous terrain.
  - Their main crops were corn, beans and squash.

Terrace Farming

Religion

- The traditions of the Inca aided in the beginning to unify their empire.
- One of these traditions was the belief that the Inca king was a descendent of the sun god.
- The Sun God, Inti, would bring prosperity and greatness to the Incan state.

Ruler

- To select the ruler of the Incan civilization was very unique.
- In most civilizations the ruler only comes from one blood line.
- The Inca could choose their ruler from 11 different noble lineages, that were believed to be descendants of the sun god.

Pachacuti

In 1438 an ambitious ruler took the throne.

Under his leadership, the Inca expanded quickly, conquering all of Peru and then moving into neighboring lands.

By 1500 the Inca controlled an area 2,500 miles along the western coast of South America.

Pachacuti

Pachacuti and his successors accomplished this feat with a combination of diplomacy and military force.

The Inca only used force when necessary.

To exercise control over their empire, the Inca built many cities in conquered areas.

Like the Roman civilization the Inca would make the cities in the conquered area look similar to the Incan capital.

This would make the citizens feel like they were a part of the Incan civilization.

The Inca connected all of their cities with roads.

A marvel of engineering, this road system symbolized the power of the Incan State.

The 14,000-mile-long network of roads and bridges spanned the empire, traversing rugged mountains and harsh deserts.

Typically, a civilization must develop a form of writing before they can come up with one for counting or math. This was not true for the Incas. Because there were so many different languages spoken among the same tribe, they had to come up with a language they would all understand, which turned out to be mathematics.

The way a quipu was used was by putting knots in different positions on a string.

ict. dos

These different positions represented a base 10 counting system.

Construction

The Inca built buildings with airtight construction.

Brain Surgery

The Inca performed successful brain surgery.

- Signs of healing

Mummies

The Inca continued to worship their rulers after the death.

The mummies were brought to all important events and housed in special chambers.

The empire falls

In 1525 King Huaya Capac was traveling his empire and stopped in Quito, Ecuador.

The king was given a gift box and when he opened it out flew butterflies and moths (considered an evil omen).

While still in Quito King Huayna died of disease. Soon after his death, civil war broke out between Huayna Capac's sons who both claimed the throne.

This civil war tore the empire apart.

Within a few years the Spanish would arrive. Taking advantage of Incan weakness, they would soon divide and conquer the empire.

Francisco Pizarro

In 1532, Francisco Pizarro, marched into South America. He had even a smaller force than Cortes.

The Inca ruler Atahualpa knew he was coming and had spies watching him.

Pizarro controlled a force of 200 men. Atahualpa commanded a force of 30,000 soldiers. The Spaniards crushed the Inca force and kidnapped Atahualpa.

Atahualpa offered to fill a room once with gold and twice with silver in exchange for his release.

After receiving the ransom, the Spanish murdered the Inca king.

Demoralized by the death of their king the army retreated.

Pizarro conquered the once mighty civilization with 200 men.

